ABSTRACT

A communication terminal has a first transmitter/receiver, a second transmitter/receiver and a controller. The controller operates to activate the second transmitter/receiver when the first transmitter/receiver receives a request for activating the second transmitter/receiver.